"There is nothing in which the birds differ more from man than the way in which they can build and yet leave a landscape as it was before." -Robert Wilson Lynd, Irish writer

Birds are more than beautiful: they are bellwethers of environmental health. This exhibit celebrates birds, as well as highlighting conservation's significant role in supporting crucial travel patterns for the 4,000 species that migrate. Because of New Jersey's location along the Atlantic flyway, our natural resources are critical to avian survival.

Since 1989, D&R Greenway Land Trust has been preserving New Jersey land, ensuring bountiful local crops and healthy water. Through its increasing success in preservation and stewardship, remarkable New Jersey landscapes remain, sustaining native species and inspiring regional artists.

About D&R Greenway Land Trust

D&R Greenway Land Trust is central New Jersey's nonprofit land preservation organization, founded in 1989. We permanently preserve watershed lands and large-scale landscapes, preventing the loss of open space to development.

The arts program at D&R Greenway inspires a conservation ethic through the visual celebration of nature and an accompanying educational component that illustrates the importance of preservation.
