New Land Preserved: Growing the Circle of Green

Preservation of a local family's treasured historic farm is the latest addition to the circle of green that surrounds Hopewell Borough. The protection of this land preserves one of the last remaining farms in Hopewell Borough and provides a vital open space connection to properties along the Mount Rose Ridge.

The Hoge family farm totaled 85 acres at one time. With green pastures, a barn and a pond, it was an idyllic scene, one that could have been painted by Norman Rockwell if he lived in New Jersey instead of Vermont. It characterized "Rural America" with a working sheep farm and agricultural land that added to the bucolic feel of the community. It was also just the type of property that could easily have been turned into a housing development – one with a name ironically reminiscent of the farm after it was gone.

The good news is that the land will never be developed. Thanks to the foresight of the family who cared for the property and the current generation's choice to preserve it, the land will stay as open space. The family's legacy will remain forever.

In February 2026, D&R Greenway Land Trust ensured the final preservation of the Hoge farm by shepherding the last 8.25 acres of land into permanent preservation with Mercer County. Just a year before, in February 2025, D&R Greenway acquired 23.7 acres of land as part one of the two-part transaction. D&R Greenway will manage all of the 32 acres for conservation and eventually public access. The land provides a possible future opportunity to connect the Lawrence Hopewell Trail into Hopewell Borough.

Rick Lear, D&R Greenway's Senior Director of Planning and Preservation, implemented the preservation process alongside landowner Christa Hoge. "It was truly a privilege to work hand-in-hand with Christa to realize her wishes and bring the property into preservation. The family has been on this land since the 1940's, and preserving their property for future generations was an honor."

Growing the Circle

This newest acquisition builds on the 1998 preservation of 47.5 acres of the former farm by Friends of Hopewell Valley Open Space. The initial preserved land is managed by The Watershed Institute. D&R Greenway will provide stewardship of the last two parcels of preserved land that includes former pasture and the pond.

As nonprofit partners, the organizations will work cooperatively to ensure stewardship of all of the land.

“We are proud to partner with D&R Greenway to purchase 32 acres of the historic Hoge Farm and preserve it for future generations,” said Mercer County Executive Dan Benson. “This purchase also marks another step towards our long-term goal to eventually extend the Lawrence-Hopewell Trail all the way to Hopewell Borough.”

Mercer County funded the final preservation and has partnered with

D&R Greenway to ensure the property’s future care.

The Hoge family kept the original historic buildings on a 6-acre homestead in Hopewell Borough as their private family property. D&R Greenway worked closely with the family on a conservation subdivision that divided the homestead from the area of the property to be protected, enabling preservation to be completed. Their decision to preserve the land is of great value to the community as a gateway into the borough.

Extending from West Broad Street, and along the Mount Rose Ridge, the land provides additional protection to the mature forest along the ridge. This former pastureland offers great hunting opportunities for red-tailed hawks, while the former farm pond, hand dug by the family in the 60’s, hosts frequent visits by great-blue herons.

The circle of preservation that surrounds the town of Hopewell now includes this land on the west, D&R Greenway’s Cedar Ridge Preserve and Sourlands Ecosystem Preserve to the north along with the new Betty Wold Johnson Hillside Farm Preserve that will open this autumn, and our St. Michaels Farm Preserve on the southeast that is walkable from town. Traveling east into Montgomery Township is the Zizak Farm, the first property protected with D&R Greenway’s Revolving Land Fund.

“The legacy of land protected in and around Hopewell is significant on a landscape scale,” says Linda Mead, President & CEO of D&R Greenway Land Trust. “It speaks to the importance of vision and perseverance that has guided this amazing accomplishment along with the commitment of landowners over three decades.” 🌿

John Rassweiler was among the earliest trustees of D&R Greenway Land Trust. His strategic guidance ensured a growing organization with clear goals and solid results. A member of the NJ Governor’s Council on Open Spaces, he brought his love of land and a boots on the ground approach to our young organization. John led development of our first trails in the Sourlands Ecosystem Preserve and mapped lands for preservation before we had staff for those tasks. John made a significant impact on who we are today. Thank you, John, for leaving a legacy that is a benefit to us all. 🌿

Leadership Giving Society - The Taplin Circle

“Land preserved today becomes the legacy we leave tomorrow.”

The Taplin Circle was established twenty-two years ago as part of D&R Greenway’s 15th Anniversary celebration. Inspired by the philanthropic vision and leadership of Frank Taplin and his wife, Peg, the Circle honors those whose generosity sustains land preservation.

Members of the Taplin Circle contribute $1,000 or more annually to advance D&R Greenway’s mission to preserve and care for land throughout New Jersey. Their generosity protects vital landscapes, supports stewardship, and ensures public access to the natural places that define our region.

We gratefully acknowledge the Taplin Circle members whose generosity makes this work possible.

The EverGreen Circle

A planned gift is a meaningful investment in the future, reflecting a donor's values and commitment to conservation. Individuals who include D&R Greenway in their estate plans through a bequest, Charitable Trust, or by naming D&R Greenway as a beneficiary of life insurance, retirement assets, donor advised funds, land, or other property are recognized as members of our EverGreen Circle.

These visionaries leave a lasting legacy, helping to protect the land, water, and wildlife that make New Jersey home for generations to come. We are deeply grateful to

The longest serving volunteer award goes to Mahlon Lovett. A graphic designer, retired from Princeton University, Mahlon created our first newsletter in May 1992, called Green Sheets. It highlighted an early vision map and spoke about new projects at the Trenton Marsh and along the Shipetauken Creek. Mahlon's artist wife Heather often provided illustrations of birds and plants. We've come a long way with Mahlon who has donated his talent to design every one of our newsletters for 34 years. We wish you well and thank you, Mahlon, for raising awareness about D&R Greenway's mission through your sincere dedication. 🌱

P. Coccinea Swain

Bill Swain was among D&R Greenway's founding trustees in the early 1990s. He used his real estate skills to negotiate our very first land purchase that preserved McBurney Woods. He and his wife Linda donated the sculpture in our Johnson Education Center Founders' Garden, P. Coccinea Swain by world-renowned sculptor, John Henry. The Swains' dedication to the importance of our mission led them to create a Charitable Remainder Trust, benefitting D&R Greenway, realized this year. We are grateful for their foresight and leadership. 🌱

Steadfast Stewards

D&R Greenway thanks our Steadfast Stewards for their dedication and continued support of our mission to preserve and care for land and inspire a conservation ethic, now and forever. Their confidence in our work helped us to expand and grow from a small startup nonprofit in 1989

Margee Harper had a perpetual smile. A loyal friend to D&R Greenway, she and her husband John were the first to call Linda Mead for help in saving the General Robert Wood Johnson estate from being covered with houses. With Margee's determination and fundraising acumen, in 2001 we succeeded in raising the private contributions to preserve and establish what is now D&R Greenway's Johnson Education Center and Princeton's Greenway Meadows park. A longtime donor, trustee and fundraiser, Margee's positive and fun spirit made her a joy to be around. Margee's dedication to open space left a legacy gift to the community that will live on forever. 🌻

Margee's motto is memorialized on a plaque near the Johnson Education Center Labyrinth Circle:
"Bloom where you are planted!"

Margaret "Margee" Harper passed on in March 2026. She was a tireless supporter of D&R Greenway and is shown here with former trustee Shawn Ellsworth.

Celebrating Heroes and Impact on the Johnson Education Center's 20th Anniversary

On April 30, 2006, D&R Greenway's Johnson Education Center opened its doors in Princeton for the first time, with a warm welcome to the community.

The new headquarters for D&R Greenway Land Trust – whose purpose in establishing the Johnson Education Center was to create a home and gathering place to inspire conservation and expand preservation – is surrounded by Greenway Meadows park. These 60 acres were preserved when D&R Greenway worked with the town and local donors to acquire the land from the General Robert Wood Johnson estate in 2001.

Over the past two decades, land has been protected and conservation stewardship has grown, along with ideas and friendships spurred by interactions at the Johnson Education Center:

🍃 State preservation programs, including the NJ Green Acres Program and the State farmland program (SADC), have held gatherings for nonprofits, local governments and landowners about State goals and funding to enable land preservation;

🍃 Landowners have conferred with D&R Greenway staff and advisors, attended workshops to learn about preservation tools, and inked contracts to preserve their land with easements or through the sale of land;

🍃 The Board of Trustees of D&R Greenway Land Trust initiated our Revolving Land Fund as part of our Land for Life campaign a decade ago, ensuring resources to protect threatened lands;

🍃 The national Land Trust Alliance held a national leadership retreat and a statewide land trust conference to share techniques to strengthen land preservation;

🍃 Land College, an educational seminar about tax benefits that paired financial advisors with land trusts from across the country, resulted in lands saved in Alabama, Virginia, Connecticut and Maryland, among other states;

🍃 We established our Native Plant Nursery, that over the past decade has been responsible for thousands of native trees, shrubs and perennials planted in backyards, and in school and community gardens throughout central NJ;

🍃 Our Marie L. Matthews Art Gallery and Olivia Rainbow Gallery have showcased artists of all ages with themed exhibits that inspire conversations about conservation and the priceless value of land;

🍃 We have become home to community groups, hosting the Princeton Photography Club and the Garden State Watercolor Society - whose special exhibits bring awareness to our region's sense of place;

🍃 Community and conservation groups, from The Nature Conservancy to Princeton University, local businesses and schools, have held retreats and events that over 20 years have exposed hundreds of thousands of people to our conservation message.

Among land saved and friendships formed at the Johnson Education Center, there are always heroes who rise up to contribute to the public good through their dedication to the cause. Two heroes will be honored as our 2026 Donald B. Jones Conservation Awardees at our Greenway Gala on May 31st at the Johnson Education Center.

Chris Tarr, a land use attorney with Stevens and Lee, walked into a conservation workshop at the Johnson Education Center ten years ago and turned to D&R Greenway President Linda Mead saying, "I am willing and available to help you preserve land." He wasn't kidding!

Over the past decade, Chris donated his legal skills to represent D&R Greenway on land preservation transactions that resulted in thousands of acres of permanent preservation. In 2021 alone, Chris worked tirelessly with Linda and staff on the dedication of Betty Wold Johnson's Hillside Farm, donating more than $118,000 in pro bono legal services. Over the past five years, over 500 hours of legal counsel was donated by Chris and his team to enable land transactions.

Opened in 2006, groundbreaking for the Johnson Education Center took place in 2004 and included advisors, trustees, public officials and staff members (left to right): Sheila Johnson Brüttsch, Margee and John Harper, Shawn Ellsworth, Richard Goldman, Laurie Emde, contractor Robert Reeves, Rosemary Blair, Charles Hartman, architect Jerry Ford, Linda Mead, Princeton Mayors Phyllis Marchand and Joe O'Neill, and Mercer County Executive Brian Hughes.

This phenomenal contribution of talent and time comes from Chris' heart. He believes in the power of land preservation and its value to people and nature. Chris follows the tradition of former awardee and board member Rich Goldman, who donated his legal services pro bono during D&R Greenway's early years. Land preservation requires legal documentation to make it happen, and we are grateful for the outstanding contribution from these attorneys.

Bill Rawlyk was introduced to D&R Greenway in our early years by founder Jim Amon. He was hired by Linda Mead as D&R Greenway's Land Preservation Director, serving for over a dozen years before leaving in 2011 to work for the Open Space Institute. Bill loved land and liked people, a winning combination for making preservation happen. Following Governor Christie Whitman's 1998 voter referendum that dedicated significant state funds to preservation for a decade, Bill led D&R Greenway in preserving a record 25 properties a year! Many landowners remember Bill fondly as someone who spoke about how to preserve their land while wielding a fishing rod, or while eating pie at a kitchen table.

Extending into personal commitment, Bill led his family in preservation of their farm. Growing up on 118 acres purchased by his Ukrainian grandparents in 1926 for $6,600, Bill's love for the land was shared by his parents Stephen and Edith, and his sister Brenda and her family. Together they protected the land as open space forever. Even further, Bill turned the former sod farm into a pollinator meadow and wetland habitat with native plants, protecting the salamanders and frogs, the birds and wildlife, that were so much a part of his life growing up with his sister on the land.

Our 2026 Greenway Gala celebrates the impact of 20 years of results generated at the Johnson Education Center, and the impact of these two dedicated individuals – Christopher Tarr, Esq. and William C. Rawlyk and family. It is an outstanding legacy that benefits us all. 🌱

(2nd from right) Bill Rawlyk with his parents, and his sister and her family, made the choice of preservation for their family farm in Hunterdon County.

Partners in Preservation

D&R Greenway thanks our Partners in Preservation for their support and for partnering with us to protect the open spaces and green places we all love.

Our Partners in Preservation realize that preserved land is important in order to provide healthy food and clean drinking water for our communities, natural refuge for birds and wildlife, resilience for our future, and trails that connect people with the great outdoors. Our preserves and programs inspire people from all walks of life to care about conservation. Together, we have preserved over 22,000 acres of land in New Jersey, with over 50 miles of public trails.

We are grateful to our Partners in Preservation for joining us in our mission to preserve land and inspire a conservation ethic, now and forever.

"I am blessed to have worked alongside local conservation titans as we raced against time and finances in the fight to preserve lands against the heavy hands of developers. From the beginning, D&R Greenway was instrumental in our success story, as a powerful friend and partner that helped preserve so many parcels in my town."

Museum and Garden Volunteers Welcome

Apply at www.drgreenway.org or info@drgreenway.org for opportunities both indoors and outdoors.

We are standing on land that is part of the traditional and ancestral homeland of the Lenape. We acknowledge the Lenape as the Original People of this Land and pay respect to their continuing cultural heritage and connection - past, present, and future - with this homeland.

2025 D&R Greenway Land Trust Volunteers

D&R Greenway thanks our loyal volunteers whose many collaborative contributions continue to build community and are invaluable to our growth and success.

Expert Birders and Habitat Conservationists – This team surveys bird populations, primarily at Hillside Farm and St. Michaels Farm Preserve. The information they find is entered into eBird to have a permanent, public record of birds found on our preserves. This process allows tracking of bird population changes, an indicator of environmental health, at the preserves over time. At Hillside Farm, breeding territories are mapped from late March to August.

Trail Stewards – These dedicated volunteers help to clear trails of fallen branches and encroaching invasive plants. They also mow trails to keep them open for visitors to enjoy.

Native Plant Nursery – Volunteers grow and take care of native plants in D&R Greenway’s nursery. Some of these plants are used to restore habitat on D&R Greenway Land Trust’s nature preserves. Volunteers assist with the seasonal native plant sales that are open to the public. Funds from the sales contribute towards stewarding land.

Corporate Groups – Business Partner in Preservation employees participate in “employee workdays” and contribute towards stewarding our nature preserves. They plant native trees, remove invasive plants and represent their companies by volunteering as corporate ambassadors at our signature events.

New Jersey Trails Association – The New Jersey Trails Association is comprised of volunteers who build and maintain trails, collect GPS data for mapping, and provide trail description information for the trail guides featured on njtrails.org. Everyone from age 16 - 80 can volunteer to help in a number of ways by performing quality control walks to verify trail information, joining Sunday morning building projects to learn skills from experienced trail designers and builders and provide feedback on trail walks. To get involved, contact D&R Greenway Land Trust (609) 924-4646 or info@drgreenway.org

Photographers, Musicians and Storytellers – Inspirational photographers, musicians and storytellers dedicate their time and talent to support D&R Greenway’s signature and educational events and public outreach.

Willing Hands and Smiling Faces – This friendly group of volunteers are invaluable in promoting a conservation ethic by processing mailings, decorating, organizing, greeting guests and helping with logistics at D&R Greenway’s signature events, art receptions and outdoor events.

Discovery Center and Historic Garden at Point Breeze – Volunteers play an important role welcoming visitors, sharing stories about our exhibits and assisting with special events. They help us grow heritage crops from the Bonaparte era and tend our Three Sisters Garden. Since we opened in May 2023, we’ve welcomed 5,000 visitors. In 2025, 440 lbs. of the produce grown at Point Breeze was donated to Bordentown City Outreach, a group of churches and civic organizations in the greater Bordentown area working to feed our food-insecure community members. The primary organizers are Father Matt Tucker and Mrs. Doan Tucker of Christ Church Parish.

To volunteer, please send a message to info@drgreenway.org

Business Partners in Preservation

D&R Greenway thanks our Business Partners who realize their investment in D&R Greenway assures a sustainable future and the wellbeing of their families, employees and communities. Their employees learn about good stewardship of the land while they work with D&R Greenway staff on our preserves and at our native plant sales.

Business Partner employees enjoy representing their companies at events and serving as ambassadors for our mission. D&R Greenway provides visibility for these businesses and corporations on our website, through signage at the Johnson Education Center and in our Annual Report. We encourage our supporters to patronize our Business Partners in appreciation for their environmental commitment. Businesses are recognized for financial and professional service contributions. To learn more, contact Deb Kilmer or Eric Derby at 609-924-4646.
